DIAMOND GETS TWO TRAFFIC SIGNAL LIGHTS

Council Votes System For Dresden and St. Clair.

COST IS $500

Lawmakers Put O. K. on Traffic Board's Plans.

Approval of the plans of the traffic commission for the installation of two signal lights, one at Dresden avenue and Sixth street and the other at St. Clair avenue and Sixth street, was voted by city council last night.

Acting upon the recommendation of Chief of Police Hugh McDermott, the lawmakers directed Solicitor Frank Hoover to prepare an ordinance providing for the issuance of $500 in bonds to purchase the two automatic lights and a control switch to be located in the police booth in the Diamond.

The police department head told council that the traffic commission was on record favoring a ban on left turns at Fifth and Market streets, Fifth street and Broadway, off St. Clair avenue to East Sixth street and off Sixth street through the Diamond at the Meredith building. N[illegible] bound traffic through the Diamond will not be required to follow the east side of the street but will follow the street car tracks on the west side of the Diamond, he said.

The new regulations, McDermott said, will become [illegible] soon as the traffic lights [illegible] use of lights at these two points, he declared, would eliminate the congestion which prevails during the busy hours in the heart of the business district. McDermott asserted that one traffic officer has been unable to handle the traffic situation in this section of the city, especially on Saturday and Sunday and during the evening hours.

Will Employ Architect

Solicitor Hoover was also instructed to prepare a resolution authorizing the employment of an architect to prepare plans for the proposed new Central fire station in St. Clair avenue, which will be considered at an adjourned meeting Friday night. Council will name the architect for the job, but the contract will be signed by Service-Safety Director Moore. While legislation for the bond issue was not ordered, council indicated that the issue would be for $60,000. Any money left from this fund may be used, Moore said, in redeeming the first bond in the proposed issue.

Owing to the absence of Councilmen A. C. Frost and Harry Altman, several ordinances and resolutions, some of which have already been placed on first reading, were tabled until Friday night.

HUNDREDS FLEE RIVER OF DEATH

Special Trains and Motor Trucks are Ready to Carry Off Inhabitants.

NAPLES, June 4. — (INS.) — The eruption of the famous old volcano Mt. Vesuvius increased today.

Two villages now are menaced with destruction.

Barre has been evacuated.

The molten river was within 1,000 yards of Terzigno this afternoon and the inhabitants were ready to flee.

NAPLES, June 4.—(INS.)—A stream of molten lava, rolling down Heli valley from a cone on the southern side of the crater of Mt. Vesuvius, menaced the village of Terbigno, today.

The inhabitants, headed by the parish priest, marched up and down the streets throughout the night, carrying sacred images and imploring God to spare their homes.

The lava river, nearly 100 feet wide and eight feet deep, advanced remorsely towards Terzigno at the rate of 160 feet hourly. At mid-morning the menacing tide was only about a mile and a half from the outskirts of the village.

Special trains and lines of motor trucks were held in readiness to carry off the inhabitants should it become necessary to evacuate the vil[illegible]

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., June 4.—(INS)—The building on John D. Rockefeller's 300 family co-operative apartment house here is at a standstill and 200 workers are walking the streets.

$25,000 IN GEMS FOUND IN MUD

NEW YORK, June 4.—(INS)—Tons of muddy real estate near Moline, Ill., were transported to New York and sifted for lost diamonds from a crashed airmail plane and today $25,000 worth of gems were recovered.

When the airmail plane crashed ablaze into the swamp last March 22, Pilot Kanuit parachuted to safety.

P. S. Ayres, adjuster for Appleton and Cox, which had insured the package, had a gambler's hunch. Tons of the muck were scooped up and carried to Dixon, Ill., where it was sifted. This first lot was barren.

Then Ayres had another batch of earth sent to him in New York and minutely examined. Forty stones worth $12,000 were found. Another scooping of the black soil and 60 more stones were recovered. Only 29 gems have been unfound and Ayres is hopeful of finding these. The operation only cost $3,000.

ORIGINS CLAUSE FIGHT LAUNCHED

WASHINGTON, June 4. — (INS)—The insurgent battle for repeal of the national origins clause of the 1924 immigration act was well under way today, with the forces opposing President Hoover claiming victory by a narrow margin.

A vote to discharge the senate immigration committee from consideration of the Nye resolution to repeal the clause is scheduled for tomorrow. The committee has pigeon-holed the repeal measure.

Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, leader of the fight to retain the national origins clause, which automatically goes into effect July 1 unless action is taken by the special session of congress, claims he has the support of enough senators to defeat the Nye measure.

BRITISH KING CALLS LABOR PARTY'S CHIEF

J. Ramsay MacDonald Will Form New Government.

FORMER PREMIER

Woman Probably Will Be Given Minister's Place.

WINDSOR, Eng., June 4.—(INS)—Premier Stanley Baldwin today tendered the resignation of his conservative cabinet to King George, and the king accepted it.

The king formally summoned J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, to Windsor castle. Mr. MacDonald probably will visit the castle tomorrow when he will be commissioned to form a new government, with himself as premier.

Big Gain by Labor Party.

King George, who is ill, received the premier while lying in his bed.

The Conservative party had been in power for slightly more than four and one half years. The Labor party will now come into control by virtue of the big gain in parliamentary power made by that party in Thursday's general election. While the Laborites will not have a clear-cut majority in the new house of commons, they will have more seats than any other party.

Mr. MacDonald was premier of the Labor government that was ousted from power by the Conservatives in 1924 when Stanley Baldwin was appointed prime minister.

Henderson to Get Post.

It is confidently believed that there will be a woman minister in the new government, thus setting a precedent in British politics.

Reports were current during the political campaign that, if the Laborites came into power, Miss Susan Lawrence might become England's first woman cabinet minister. She is slated, it is said, for the post of minister of health. However, another woman was mentioned with equal prominence. She is Miss Margaret Bondfield, long a prominent figure in labor circles and a member of the last house of commons. She was re-elected in the recent general election.

It is believed in some quarters that the post of foreign secretary will be offered to Arthur Henderson and that Philip Snowden will return to the portfolio he held in the previous Labor government — the chancellorship of the exchequer.

The chief policies of the Labor government are expected to follow more or less closely the principles laid down by Mr. MacDonald on election day to International News Service. They include:

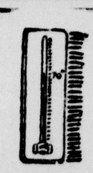

Furtherance of world disarmament; Britain to abide by the war debt agreement with the United States; speedy withdrawal of the British occupational troops from German soil and a general policy of world peace.

The valuation of the Steel City school property is $6,963,851.

There are 3,171 students in the senior high schools, 5,461 in the juntor high schools and 26,398 in the elementary grades of the county. A teaching force of 1,051 is employed.

Aliquippa alone employed 212 teachers. Potter township had the smallest school district, with one building, one teacher and 23 students.

There are 27 townships and 28 boroughs in the county, and six of these employ district superintendents. There are 119 one-room schools, 20 two or more room buildings, 15 one-room brick and 70 brick buildings of two or more rooms.

Do not suffer another minute without putting his preparation to a thoro test and without risking one cent. DREAD NEURITIS YIELDS QUICKLY TO NEW KONJOLA

Pains Forced Him to Lay Off Work for Two Weeks At a Time; Stomach Trouble Also Ended.

MR. J. R. WOOD.

"After the remarkable manner in which Konjola benefitted me, I feel that it is my duty to indorse it to all who suffer," said Mr. J. R. Wood, R. R. No. 2, Bloomingsburg, Ohio. "My entire body was affected by neuritis and often I had to stop working for weeks at a time. The stomach trouble added greatly to my suffering and I was at a loss to know what to do as all medicines failed to benefit me.

"But all that is changed now, simply because I have given Konjola a chance. What a wonderful medicine this is. Working at the root of my ailments it cleansed and invigorated my system. Soon the neuritis pains vanished entirely and then my stomach resumed its normal functioning. But best of all, it took two bottles of this medicine to restore my health. Does this not prove that Konjola is supreme?"

Konjola is sold in East Liverpool, O., at Carnahan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

TUESDAY, JUNE 4, 1929.

Appalling Traffic Toll

For the first time in many months, East Liverpool had no accidents over the week-end. The drop in temperature probably had some bearing on the good record, but, in the main, it was due to the exercise of common sense rules of safety. However, comparatively few municipalities escaped citation in the list of casualties, for a check-up showed that Ohio, with 19 dead, led the list of states in a total of 67 fatalities.

Most of the fatal crashes in Ohio were caused by the automobile, which last year was responsible for two of every seven accidental deaths in the United States. An interurban car killed three motorists at Lakeview. A Zanesville woman died when her motor car blew a tire. A pedestrian was fatally injured by a hit-skip motorist in Columbus, while other automobile deaths were reported by Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dayton, Canton, Willard and Xenia. Many cities listed injured.

If the toll continues to mount, and it is not improbable during the summer, it is a foregone conclusion that last year's automobile accident death total of 27,500 will be surpassed when the 1929 figures are announced by the United States census bureau.

The National Safety council's report shows that 58 per cent. of the victims in 1928 were pedestrians. Sixteen per cent. of the death toll was exacted in crashes between motor cars, five per cent. in automobile-train collisions and three per cent. in automobile-electric car wrecks.

The seriousness of the traffic problem is seen in the fact that falls, railroad accidents, drownings, burns and street car accidents trail the motor car as death agencies. Last year there were 24,000 fatal home accidents and 20,500 fatalities in public places not involving automobiles.

With the increase in the number of motor cars in operation, and this total is mounting each year, the toll will not be decreased unless automobile owners comply with city and state laws against recklessness, pedestrians use cross-walks and quit jay-walking, and municipal lawmakers and safety chieftains make the streets as safe as circumstances permit.

The appalling toll of life, not to mention the number of injured, in traffic accidents should prompt serious thought on the part of every user of the streets.

Will Power and Vegetables

What is the secret of the accomplishments of the strong man, the spectacular acrobat, the iron-jaw expert—all the scores of persons who earn their living by doing things that others marvel at enough to encourage with money?

In New York, Harry Luft, champion strong man, died at an early age of a disease similar to anemia. On his deathbed, he called for his 9-year-old son, Solly, the only one of three boys who showed promise of carrying on the reputation of a line of strong men which had lasted for generations. In a two-hour conference, the dying man told his son the secrets that had made his ancestors famous.

Luft attributed his strength to a steady diet of vegetables and application of will power. It is the development of the will power that is the real secret; the vegetable diet, in view of the reason of the strong man's death, has only publicity value and not a great deal of that.

Few persons desire to be successful iron-jaw performers, strong men, acrobats, animal trainers, or any one of the spectacular show professions. But, everyone wants to be successful and it is will power that counts. How great is the desire? Would you like to be successful at the thing you undertake or are you determined to succeed at any cost? Solly Luft couldn't have pulled an automobile with his teeth if he had sat down and wished. He went out determined to do it and was successful. The "will to do" is the most important single factor in success. There is no mystery, no secret formula that can cast a magic spell—nothing but knowing what you want to do and trying to do it until you succeed.

Well-Born Child

Merits of childhood are prerogatives of fond parents whose statements may be colored by sentiment. Few parents will admit that their children may not be quite as bright as the children of the people across the street, but there are always plenty of parents who will admit that their children have an edge on the intellect of all other children in the neighborhood.

Psychologists have drawn up intelligence tests designed to show mental ages of children and adults, but frequently the conclusions were not complimentary to the discriminative powers of the people most concerned and their success has been qualified. It is easy to tell a person that he is bright, but it is no easy task to carry information of backwardness. There are always a number of factors out of control in intelligence tests and positive conclusions are dangerous unless every influence has been checked.

Scientists of Western Reserve university have announced that they will start work in the fall on a table, the completion of which will require five years. At the end of that time, after they have gathered information of hundreds of children and conducted extensive research, they will be able to tell the parent just what his boy should be at ten, at fifteen, at twenty. It will be an attempt to classify the degrees of childhood.

Dr. T. Wingate Todd, professor of anatomy at the university, will be in charge of the work. Dr. Todd has had a varied career and is an authority on child psychology as well as pediatrics which was at one time his profession.

The findings of this group of scientists will be interesting. While it is doubtful that anyone or any group could compile a table which would provide an accurate measurement of child growth, the investigations which will be made should cast much new light on the problems of child psychology. Anything that offers promise or providing help to the parent in the problems of rearing his children to the best advantage will be worthwhile, even if the original purpose of the venture is not achieved.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—When Abraham Lincoln called congress into special session in 1861 to handle the situation arising through the secession of the southern states, he asked for $400,000,000 to support an army of 400,00 men in a "short and decisive" war. That sum was five times the Revolutionary war debt, but the nation was eight times larger. Almost half of the nation, however, had left the Union and was outside the scope of taxation.

Heavy taxation, large loans, increased import tariffs were resorted to. The secretary of the treasury, Salmon P. Chase, strove to keep the public credit intact, calling for rigid integrity in expenditure as a means of maintaining public faith in the ability of the nation to finance the struggle. Nevertheless, as the hope for a short and decisive conflict faded before added years of intensive warfare, the credit of the nation trembled and faltered.

Treasury notes in small denominations were issued in great volume, the celebrated greenbacks. Few Americans realize that these notes were, and still are, nothing more than a promise of the United States government to pay to the bearer the value marked on the notes. In our time they have always been perfectly good, and hence we think of them as money, the same as gold coin. During the Civil war their value fell to below fifty cents on the dollar, and for years after the conflict they remained below par. A national political party grew up, based on a plan to redeem the greenbacks below par.

Gold and silver practically disappeared, paper money being issued even for purposes of small change. Meanwhile it was necessary to sell bonds. The National Bank act, sponsored by Secretary Chase and passed at the height of the war, was designed both to create a market for government bonds, and to increase the circulating medium and stablize commercial credits. National banks could buy government bonds and issue bank notes on the security of these bonds. Thus the basic resources of the banks became available to the government, and the currency, while indirectly inflated, became a combined bank and government currency with added local strength back of it.

Today there remain in circulation some $450,000,000 in greenbacks, while the National Bank act remains in force and some $750,000,000 in national bank notes are part of our currency.

The war developed our first super-salesman of government bonds, Jay Cooke of Philadelphia. A private banker with all of the instincts of a great promoter, he organized the sale of bonds until his agents were right behind the army, selling to the soldiers on pay day. As a tribute to Cooke, his portrait hangs in the department of the treasury at Washington, the only private citizen thus honored, alongside our secretaries of the treasury.

When the North triumphed in 1865, the nominal debt reached $2,800,000,000. The actual debt, considering inflated currency, was much greater. Lincoln's original estimate of the war cost had been multiplied many times but the nation had stood the strain. The Confederate debt was of course wiped out, and the currency of the Confederacy became but souvenirs.

The short Spanish war placed no strain on the treasury, as it came at the beginning of a new era of commercial development and prosperity. A few nuisance taxes were about all which the public had to complain about. A brief money panic in 1907 caused more trouble, and taught us that the National bank act was not sufficiently elastic to take care of the credit needs of business at all times.

From this experience grew the Federal Reserve act, the essence of which lies in making the actual resources of the country, agricultural, mineral, and manufactured products, the basis for bank credits and in turn for currency support. Between 1907 and the start of the World war we also adopted the income tax amendment to the constitution. When we entered the greatest conflict of all time, the treasury had these two useful weapons at hand for money raising and currency stabilizing.

The Federal Reserve system stood the test. It could and did deflate fictitious values without destroying production and industry. Secretary Mellon, taking the helm in 1921, began his drive for economy, tax reduction, reduction of the debt.

It is worth noting that among the Allied war powers, England was the first to adopt the same plan, that of starting to pay, however hard it seemed. France, Italy, and other nations, delaying and postponing the evil hour, went through long and serious periods of falling money values, climaxed at last by accepting a deteriorated currency as a permanent condition and readjusting their treasuries to a new basis. While much of the result must be attributed to the longer period of costly warfare suffered by other nations, the fact remains that by starting to save and to pay, the United States has taken her place as the world standard of sound national finance, and has become the world's greatest creditor nation.

Q. What is the longest distance that Babe Ruth has batted a ball? J. M. F.

A. There are no records kept of the longest hits made in a ball game. Three hits which Babe Ruth made in the world series were estimated to be 450 feet, 500 feet, and 550 feet. These are perhaps the longest hits made. Babe Ruth made a long hit in June, 1921, which was estimated to have traveled over 560 feet.

Q. How many decisions and advisory opinions has the World Court of Internal Justice rendered? C. M.

A. It has given 13 judgments and 16 advisory opinions. There are four cases pending and undecided.

Q. Was Leonard Wood ever governor of Cuba? W. F.

A. Leonard Wood was military governor of Cuba from 1899 to 1902. In 1902 the government of Cuba was transferred to the Cuban Republic so that after that date the United States had no governor general there.

Q. Is there as much silver in a Canadian quarter as there is in one of the United States? C. N.

A. The Canadian quarter contains 83.25 grains of fine silver. The United States quarter contains 86.805 grains of fine silver. The silver in Canadian coins is a little finer than that in our coins, therefore the value of silver in each is about the same. Canadian bullion is 925 fine and United States bullon is 900 fine.

Q. What is the area of Paris? M. C.

A. Measuring to its system of fortification, the area of Paris is 400 square miles.

"Love me, love my dog," says Rosalie, but this one is only dog from the neck up, and from there down it is an umbrella, though it has more of the appearance of a walking stick. It is enclosed when not in use, in a leather case which is very tight-fitting, and it is this case which gives it the walking stick appearance. The case may be obtained in most any kind of leather desired, and has the popular metal slide fastening. Rosalie gets about as much 'kick' out of the dog as she does from the umbrella, for by proper manipulation the eyes can be made to light up and the mouth to open.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, June 4.—No section of New York has been so extravagantly publicized lately as the Harlem Black Belt. It has been whooped up in a half dozen plays and as many books. Cabaret resorts attract hordes of down town slummers and Strivers Row is the scene of studio soirees attended by whites.

Harlem in recent years has given the stage Florence Mills, Bill Robinson, Adelaide Hall and others and sent Josephine Baker, a dusky singer, to triumph in Paris and Paul Robeson in London. Jules Bledsoe and Roland Hayes have become singularly conspicuous in singing roles.

Two currently successful plays and three big selling novels were authored by Negroes. From such surface indications, the Negro would appear to have attained a striking stage of artistic development, yet those who know say the majority in Harlem face economic disaster.

Judging from the colorful flow on Lenox avenue, the district has never before displayed such fine feathers. The gaudy shieks and flashily dressed brown skins are promiscuous in every block. But these it would seem are representative of only a favored few. Many doors have closed to colored workers.

Except on Pullman trains, there are few places for the colored maid, and the colored nurse has a similar struggle. Hair dressing and manicure parlors, once an occupational high spot, are now using only white girls, chiefly Scandinavians. Wash room attendants are also mostly white.

Most hotels long ago discarded the colored waiter in favor of foreign importations. This also applies to chefs. And there are only a handful of colored valets and butlers, and just a straggling few footmen, coachmen, yardmen and chauffeurs.

First class apartment houses are no longer employing colored elevator operators, and apartment houses that do employ chiefly the West Indian Negroes, who are far from popular in Harlem. Posts of doormen and building superintendents are also seldom held by colored folk.

Fortunate gentlemen who slip off to Bar Harbor and other natty nooks over week ends for golfing in the sunshine and canoeing in the moonlight usually land at Grand Central Monday morning. To the red caps they are "gilders"—a colloquialism for gilding the palm. They are reputed the most extravagant of all tippers.

The bright young collegiates who edit college fuellitons have not done badly of late in New York journalism. Four attained responsible editorial posts at salaries of more than $10,000 a year. On college journals they acquire a knowledge of makeup and other printing technicalities it often takes years to master on the paying job.

Smart hair dressing and beauty parlors now ask patrons to make engagements at least a week in advance. In spite of 300 new salons opening in the metropolitan district last year, the business has grown out of bound. Hair dressers on liners in port are able to work full time. The big factor in the increase of trade is the demand for beauty treatments. Women who used to have "facials" once a week often make a daily visit. And so far as one can notice homely women remain homely.

Upper Broadway is acquiring all the chop suey, dance hall, souvenir shop and vaudeville glitter of the lower strip and is to have two legitimate theaters above 72d street playing first class attractions.

There is no optimism like that of the man with thinning hair for the barber's newest restorer. Only this morning I hurried home from a barber shop, fearing the new growth would push off my hat along the sidewalk.

And it just percolated while writing this that the barber who again raised such high hopes had a head suggesting a peeled onion.

Mr. Whalen's traffic plan may be the billiards. Everybody sings its praise. But it took me exactly 42 minutes by clock to travel from 46th and Madison avenue to a theater on west 45th street the other night, so Mr. Whalen may have his idea—with love and kisses.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

On April 24, 1704, the first newspaper was printed in Boston—The Boston News-Letter. In these 225 years much progress has been made in every field of endeavor.

I speak of the newspapers today because of their attitude towards health. Thorugh the medium of the press, publicity is given all health measures. There is no excuse for anyone being uninformed concerning these regulations.

At this time there happens to be much publicity and propaganda regarding diphtheria. The reports point out the need for inoculation against this disease.

Since the discovery of an antitoxin for the prevention of diphtheria many lives have been saved. The newspapers have been instrumental in spreading the gospel of this precautionary treatment. Every parent has had the opportunity of being well informed.

Recently in New York City there has been a well-conducted campaign against diphtheria. Every health and social agency has been interested in this campaign.

The tragic thing about diphtheria is that children are usually the victims. From the age of six months there si danger. The greatest susceptibility is from two to five years.

Statistics prepared by the Health Department of New York City show that during the year 1928 there were 10,776 cases of diphtheria. Of these 642 died, and practically every one of the victims was a child of school age.

Had proper precautions been taken, practically every one of these lives could have been saved. In addition, the families of the other cases would have avoided this siege of illness.

No parent would deliberately jeopardize any child's health. And yet, this is just what happens when you fail to have a child immunized against this dread disease—diphtheria.

There are plenty of diseases in which there is little hope of cure and no prospect of prevention. But we can face this ailment in full assurance of successful battle? There shall be an end of diphtheria.

Answers to Health Queries.

WORRIED. Q.—What should a girl of 22, five feet two inches tall, weigh?

2—What causes a murmuring heart and is this condition dangerous? I have been told to avoid work and to rest as much as possible. Would smoking or drinking tend to aggravate the trouble?

A.—You should weigh about 120 pounds.

2—Nervousness or some abnormality of the heart itself would be apt to cause this symptom. Whether or not it is dangerous depends upon the extent of the trouble. Undue excitement and overexertion, as well as excesses in eating and drinking, would naturally tend to cause further trouble. Follow your doctor's advice.

ANXIOUS, Q.—My little boy's left eye waters a great deal; sometimes there is pus in the corner. The eyelid and upper part of the cheek is kept red by the constant watering. I have been told by a specialist that the only thing to do is to remove the tear duct. Would the eye be normal in appearance after such an operation? What would you advise?

A.—If the tear duct cannot be dilated it may be necessary to resort to an operation for the removal of the tear sac. Follow the specialist's judgment in the matter.

J. E. H., jr., Q.—How much should a boy aged 19, five feet eight inches tall weigh?

2—Will taking raw eggs help to gain weight and build up the general health?

A.—He should weigh about 140 pounds.

2—Yes. Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk, fresh fruits and vegetables. Exercise daily in the open air and practice deep breathing. Get regular hours of sleep and avoid poor elimination.

H. F. Q.—Would a goitre or indigestion bother the heart in any way?

A.—Yes, it is possible.

They Can Not Afford To.

The statement by President Hoover that he is confident there will be no rise in railroad rates as a result of the O'Fallon valuation decision by the supreme court, is based on pre-decision statements by the roads that they would seek no raises if they won their case, and an post-decision statements to the same purport by several railroad heads.

The roads would be guilty of decidedly short-sighted business strategy if they should undertake to raise their rates. On the whole, the properties are highly prosperous. And while the supreme court ruling will presumably result in a large increase of the official estimate of the value upon which their profit percentages are henceforth to be figured, it does not in any way affect their actual condition except as it tends to enlarge the net returns of those in class "A." In no way does it add to their expenses.

An increase of rates on the basis of the court decision would be construed by the country as an effort to gouge, and would be resented accordingly. The railroads of America can not afford to risk anything of that sort. At present they are in good odor with the public because, on the whole, they are trying to play fair and because they unquestionably are rendering first-class service for what they receive in the way of pay. But there have been times when they have been in decidedly bad odor. Their present good reputations have been built up through acts of repentence and amendment, and by emergence from a shady past. It is very important for them to preserve their reputations by avoiding even an appearance of evil.

How Are Your Table Manners?

How are your table manners at restaurants?

Isn't it true that you pay no attention to table etiquette?

Even use a toothpick in public, don't you?

Can you think of anything more disgusting?

Yet when you are among strangers you sometimes indulge in this practice.

Do you avoid making noises when you are eating soup?

Aren't there many things you do at table in restaurants that you would not do at the home of a friend, or in a good hotel, in your own home town?

Those who sit at table with you or near you can easily realize what your breeding or instruction has been by your table manners.

They see you as you really are, shorn of the veneer you use when dining with those whom you wish to impress favorably.

An inborn sense of proper table manners does not violate good usage.

It is the acquired kind which under certain circumstances annoys others by infractions of rules that should always be followed.

A gentleman or a gentlewoman does not lapse in the fine art of dining, whether it be in the courts of honor or a wayside inn.

"MOLLY AND ME" SCREEN WINNER

If you like to go home from a movie with the feeling that you have had a very delightful visit with some charming friends who have been having a little trouble but have come through safely and everything is happy again, see "Molly and Me," the Tiffany-Stahl production now playing at the State theater.

Belle Bennett is both a surprise and a treat, and there is that funny chap, Joe E. Brown, and what a team these two make—both of them tugging at each other's heart strings and at your own. Both laughing through adversity and fame alike and one of them, Molly, gallant of spirit always.

Lois Leeson's story is of a burlesque team who are a riot in the sticks. After fifteen years of yearning they "make" Broadway, but only Jim's name gets on the posters. Molly is too old—her stuff is out of date, as well as her figure, so a peppy youngster shares the lights with Jim and Molly, in ermine, orchids and all sorts of finery stands on the sidelines with mingled emotions of pride and disapointment.

That Peggy youngster, played adorably by Alberta Vaughn, has such loving, generous ways that Molly thinks perhaps she's in the way, and she goes back to the burlesque wheel. Jim, too, gets to thinking he must be in love with Peggy, or at least she must love him, the way she kisses and pets him—but Peggy just can't help lavishing caresses on everyone because her life is so wonderful, between being such a hit and being engaged to a producer, and when Jim learns this he sets about trying to undo the harm wrought by a letter to Molly.

The closing scene between Molly and Jim is a touchingly tender one.

STORY OF DESERT IS CERAMIC HIT

Betty Bronson and William Collier, jr., head the cast of "One Stolen Night," the glamorous desert romance now showing at the Ceramic theater and their work entitles them to a place among the few famous teams of "great screen lovers."

The story of "One Stolen Night" is an unusual and fascinating one. Collier plays the part of a British soldier, who leaves his regiment in the Sudan, to give the impression that he, and not his brother has stolen the commissary funds.

Bob later finds himself in a cabaret in an Algerian town, where a troupe of wandering vaudeville performers are playing. The wife of the manager of the company is bitterly jealous of one of the dancing girls, and instead of lashing the ashes from the cigarette in the girl's mouth—during their whip act—she lets the thongs wrap about the dancers' neck, and then drives her out.

Another girl, treated in the same way, arouses Bob's love and sympathy, and when she is sold to a sheik in a neighboring oasis—he follows. His action whips the story to furious speed. "One Stolen Night" is an amazing story of the desert. It is splendidly staged, filmed and acted.

SINGING, DANCING PICTURE SCORES

The Fox Movietone production, "Hearts in Dixie," which opened its engagement at the American theater last night, strikes a new note in entertainment. This all-talking picture—and an all-singing, all-dancing production it might be termed, also—was given its local premiere before an audience which, before the final song, was expressing its enthusiasm with prolonged applause.

Fox Movietone has taken a story of Dixieland, with its cotton fields, steamboats, levees and other atmospheric properties, and used it to knit together an amazingly generous number of performances by some 200 singers, dancers and actors.

While, after all is said and done, "Hearts in Dixie" may be termed properly a comedy suggesting at times a revue, it rises to such grandeur through the use of folk songs and spirituals that at times one is tempted to compare it to grand opera. It shows, as the screen or any other medium has never shown before, the tremendous artistic value, musically, of the native melodies which had their origine, apparently, among the cotton field and levee workers of the southland.

A chorus of 60 voices presents in nothing less than a sublime manner the moving songs of the region where people were known for their proneness to sing even though they were hungry.

In addition to the chorus numbers there are many by a quartet and by soloists, while dancers stage whirlwind steps which are breath-taking in their speed and dramatic implications.

All of which is saying that "Hearts in Dixie" is a novelty which has no precedent.

Cries of "Barkers" Heard at Columbian Park.

"Come over and get a hot-dog."
"See the tallest giants on earth."
"See the cow with the human skin."

These and a thousand other cries from the "barkers," combined with the musical din from a score of calliopes, organs, sirens and bands proclaimed last night that the big festival being staged at Columbiana park by the Johnny J. Jones exposition, under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, had officially opened.

Jones has long been famous in the carnival field. His huge show is selected each year to furnish the midway features at the big state fairs in the United States and exhibitions in Canada.

Many New Rides.

A feature this year is the large number of rides, most of them entirely new.

There is the mammoth "Bozo" grunting and groaning and giving passengers a thousand thrills at each turn. The "Whoopee" is another thrill. There is the "Swooper," that looks like a Ferris wheel that some fat people had sat atop—and there is the garden of kiddies, or baby rides, owned by Johnny J. Jones, jr., the 8-year old son of the showman.

There are giants, giantesses, midgets, trained animal shows, scenic and electrical shows, fun houses, scenic railways, human freaks and curiosities, strange monsters from the Florida everglades, diving and swimming girls, in fact, there is so much to see that it will take several visits to take in all the sights

Afternoon and Evening Shows.

The "Gigantic Trio" is, at least in point of size, the biggest attraction yet seen here. It consists of two sisters and a brother, each towering eight feet. The two sisters are very comely and when Madame Elsa, the tallest one, walks among the audience and invites anyone to walk under her outstretched arm she creates a sensation.

There are the Ituri pygmies from the Belgian Congo, and scores of other entertaining novelties.

All shows and rides will be open each afternoon and night throughout the week.

FLU LEFT ME IN A RUN DOWN CONDITION

Owa-Ton-Na Proves Valuable Aid After This Dread Affliction

Poisonous toxins which remain in the system after a severe case of illness sometimes prevent the sufferer from recuperating for many months. So severe are the ravages of this dread affliction, flu, that many claim it takes years for the system to return to normal. Many have found in Owa-Ton-Na a valuable aid to nature in the removal of harmful poisonous toxxins that in a short time they once again feel like their former self. Owa-Ton-Na's tonic and cleaning effect on the stomach, liver, kidneys, and intestinal tract, aid nature in the elimination of harmful poisons. Food is properly digested, assimilation is improved with a result that strength is regained, and a new feeling of health is apparent.

Those who suffer from the after effects of flu will find in the case of Mrs. Jennie Hargest, 126 W. Second street, East Liverpool, Ohio, a story which should give them new hope. She says: "For the past two years I have been suffering with poor health. My System just didn't want to come back to normal after having had the flu. I felt tired, all in and worn out all the time. I had no appetite and when I would eat, I suffered a great deal with indigestion.

"Dizzy spells and backaches frequently caused me a lot of trouble, in fact, I felt tired and worn out all the time. I have heard so much about the good Owa-Ton-Na is doing for people right here in East Liverpool that when it was recommended to me I thought I would give it a trial. You can imagine how pleased I was when this fine old Indian Remedy started to clean up all these old troubles.

"My food now digests properly, no more gas and bloating spells, in fact I have a new appreciation for food, everything just seems to taste fine. Dizzy spells and backaches are gone. I sleep good, getting up in the morning feeling refreshed. My bowels now function normally and I can highly recommend Owa-Ton-Na to anyone who is suffering from these conditions."

Mrs. Jeannie Hargest

What Miss Hargest says about Owa-Ton-Na is the same that thousands now say all over this broad land. Many who have suffered for years and have tried many expensive treatments, medicines and almost anything that was recommended without results found relief in this fine old Indian Remedy. For your benefit a special laboratory representative is located at Carnahan's Drug Store, 114 East Sixth street, East Liverpool to explain to you the merits of this remedy and how best to take it for quickest results. This service is free and incurs no obligation. What Owa-Ton-Na has done for others it can surely do for you. A trial bottle is usually sufficient to convince..

Owa-Ton-Na is also obtainable at Carnahan's East End and Newell, W. Va. Stores.

RUSTLERS STEAL COW FROM YARD

ENID, Okla.—Cattle rustlers have been more or less active in this section of the country for several years, but they caused no end of excitement here recently when they backed a truck into the yard of W. A. Beck and lead a 4-year-old jersey cow onto the truck and made their getaway with the animal.

Beck had staked the cow out in his yard to graze. Marks in his yard showing the tread of a truck's tires told the story of the cow's disappearance.

Lilyan Tashman tells how to attract

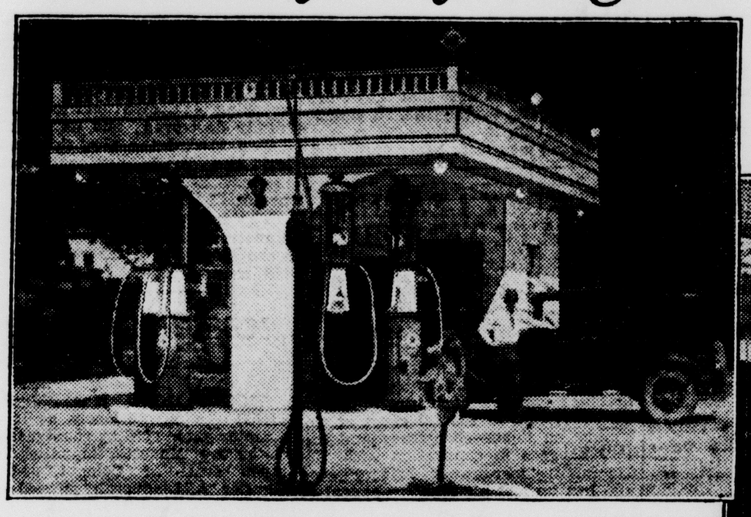

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Opinion is unanimous among the 39 foremost movie directors that no girl can be fascinating unless she has lovely skin. As Alan Dwan puts it: "Smooth skin is a perpetual attraction. Rose-petal skin gets the American public every time."

Lilyan Tashman says: "You just can't 'get by' on the screen without smooth, beautiful skin." Like 98% of the important actresses in Hollywood, she is enthusiastic about Lux Toilet Soap. "This fragrant white soap is such a wonderful help in keeping my skin blooming!" she says.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap, and all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms. It is made by the famous French method.

"Pump-hunting" stops when you switch to SOHIO

SWITCH to Sohio Ethyl gasoline and stop "pump hunting" every time you run out of gasoline outside your own neighborhood! Wherever you live in Ohio, there's a Sohio pump nearby—as handy as your grocer. Wherever you go in Ohio you need never "cruise around" looking for a Sohio dealer or Red-White-and-Blue Standard service station—there's one right at your elbow!

Since its introduction in July, 1928, thousands and thousands of Ohio motorists have become Sohio users. These motorists realize that there IS a difference in gasoline; that extra refining care, modern equipment and expert human workmanship make Sohio a gasoline of superior qualities.

We've made it easy for every motorist to get Sohio wherever he happens to be in the state of Ohio. More than 700 Standard service stations and over 3000 dealers scattered from Lake Erie to the River sell Sohio Ethyl Gasoline. This ready availability in every community is one reason for Sohio's swift and increasing popularity.

Try Sohio yourself. There's a Standard service station or Sohio dealer right near your home. Fill up with Sohio. Put it to any test you wish—in your own car. Learn for yourself that there IS a difference in gasoline!

FLU LEFT ME IN A RUN DOWN CONDITION

Owa-Ton-Na Proves Valuable Aid After This Dread Affliction

Poisonous toxins which remain in the system after a severe case of illness sometimes prevent the sufferer from recuperating for many months. So severe are the ravages of this dread affliction, flu, that many claim it takes years for the system to return to normal. Many have found in Owa-Ton-Na a valuable aid to nature in the removal of harmful poisonous toxins that in a short time they once again feel like their former self. Owa-Ton-Na's tonic and cleaning effect on the stomach, liver, kidneys, and intestinal tract, aid nature in the elimination of harmful poisons. Food is properly digested, assimilation is improved with a result that strength is regained, and a new feeling of health is apparent.

Those who suffer from the after effects of flu will find in the case of Mrs. Jennie Hargest, 126 W. Second street, East Liverpool, Ohio, a story which should give them new hope. She says: "For the past two years I have been suffering with poor health. My System just didn't want to come back to normal after having had the flu. I felt tired, all in and worn out all the time. I had no appetite and when I would eat, I suffered a great deal with indigestion.

"Dizzy spells and backaches frequently caused me a lot of trouble, in fact, I felt tired and worn out all the time. I have heard so much about the good Owa-Ton-Na is doing for people right here in East Liverpool that when it was recommended to me I thought I would give it a trial. You can imagine how pleased I was when this fine old Indian Remedy started to clean up all these old troubles.

"My food now digests properly, no more gas and bloating spells, in fact I have a new appreciation for food, everything just seems to taste fine. Dizzy spells and backaches are gone. I sleep good, getting up in the morning feeling refreshed. My bowels now function normally and I can highly recommend Owa-Ton-Na to anyone who is suffering from these conditions."

Mrs. Jeannie Hargest

What Miss Hargest says about Owa-Ton-Na is the same that thousands now say all over this broad land. Many who have suffered for years and have tried many expensive treatments, medicines and almost anything that was recommended without results found relief in this fine old Indian Remedy. For your benefit a special laboratory representative is located at Carnahan's Drug Store, 114 East Sixth street, East Liverpool to explain to you the merits of this remedy and how best to take it for quickest results. This service is free and incurs no obligation. What Owa-Ton-Na has done for others it can surely do for you. A trial bottle is usually sufficient to convince.

Owa-Ton-Na is also obtainable at Carnahan's East End and Newell, W. Va. Stores.

RUSTLERS STEAL COW FROM YARD

ENID, Okla.—Cattle rustlers have been more or less active in this section of the country for several years, but they caused no end of excitement here recently when they backed a truck into the yard of W. A. Beck and lead a 4-year-old jersey cow onto the truck and made their getaway with the animal.

Beck had staked the cow out in his yard to graze. Marks in his yard showing the tread of a truck's tires told the story of the cow's disappearance.

HOLLOW ROAD JOB WILL BE LET IN JUNE

Widening of Youngstown Highway Link Is Planned.

WILL RUSH WORK

Reasonable Damage Claims Prompt Decision of County.

Because of the reasonable damage claims filed with the county commissioners by California Hollow property owners, announcement was made today that this section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road will be resurfaced with concrete to a width of 20 feet this summer. Bids will be opened by the state highway department at Columbus this month.

The road will conform with the wide section in Liverpool corporation, but will be two feet less in width than the present highway in St. Clair township, which begins at the Y. & O. substation.

Construction of retaining walls at certain points along California Hollow will not interfere with the pouring of concrete.

On the East Liverpool-East Palestine road the pouring of concrete has reached a point south of Fredericktown.

Bids for the construction of a four-span concrete bridge at Fredericktown will be opened at Columbus at the June letting. This project was to have been awarded in May, but because of an error in the legal advertising, the project had to be re-advertised.

Cox Highway Job Deferred.

The state highway department will not reconstruct the Cox highway from the intersection of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road east to Unity this year. The program indicates "patch work." This section may be rebuilt during 1930, but so far no definite announcement has been made.

Three of the worst spots were improved last Saturday.

There will be no reconstruction work on the Lincoln highway in Madison township this season, but cold patching will be distributed all along this brick section. It had been suggested that the state highway department should improve this road from Madison stop on the Y. & O. railroad southward to Apple's Corners by pouring a concrete top over the brick.

Equipment on Elkton Road Job.

Unloading equipment is now being erected at Elkton by George B. Patterson of Wellsville who was recently awarded the contract for building a concrete road from the intersection of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road west to Elkton, a distance of five miles. Wet weather has delayed work on this new road.

It has been reported that the state highway department will widen the narrow brick section of the Lisbon-Salineville road in Hephner hollow next year. Cold patch work is to be done on this section this season.

Contractor H. C. Armstrong has begun preliminary work on the floor of the new concrete bridge over Beaver creek, south of Lisbon. The detour will be just west of the Roller flour mill, a route used when the bridge was being constructed last year. Property on the east side of the Lincoln highway at the north end of the bridge is to be removed, and the road made level with the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western railroad track. A dip at the south end of this bridge is also to be eliminated.

Sewer Extension Urged

A communication from the board of health urging the extension of the sanitary sewer system to St. George and Railroad streets and Ohio avenue as a means of eliminating private sewers which now empty into the Ohio river at this point, was received and referred to a committee recently named to confer with property owners said to be opposed to the improvement.

A claim of $1,000 filed by Erwin Roberts for damages alleged to have been done by surface water to his property at Grant street and Dresden avenue was referred to the solicitor.

The solicitor was instructed to bring in legistlation for the grading and curbing of Palissey street between Etruria street and the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. The grading of the street, Service-Safety Director Moore reported, is the best solution of the drainage problem. Councilman E. L. Green opposed the action which was supported by Members Lindell, Hughes, Fleming and Ferguson.

Pocketbook Manufacturers Happy.

Manufacturers of pocketbooks and billfolds will reap a harvest as a result of the change in the size of the currency as the present pocketbooks were made for the large-size bills. The old pocketbooks, however will be in service so long as any of the old type bills remain in circulation.

The change to the smaller currency is being made in the interest of economy and greater convenience.

Approximately 53 percent of the new currency will be of the $1 denomination.

ALLEGED BURGLAR SHOT, PAL FLEES

CLEVELAND, June 4.—(INS.) — One alleged burglar was shot and perhaps fatally wounded, and his accomplice escaped, when the two were persued by policemen here early today.

The pair are said to have attempted to burglarize several East End houses and drug stores. They succeeded in entering two drug stores, according to police, obtaining small amounts of money from each.

Residents of the vicinity telephoned police and Patrolmen Harry Hughes and William Kleinhenz surprised the trio in a pharmacy, they said.

The wounded man gave his name as Tom Powers, of Cleveland, at Mt. Sini hospital, though a card in his pocket bore the name of Fred Carter, of Detroit. He is about 25.

NOV. 20 TARIFF BILL VOTE DATE

WASHINGTON, June 4.—A program for passing the new tariff bill through the senate by November 1 and of finally enacting it into law by November 20 was proposed today by administration leaders as the next step in giving congress an all-summer vacation.

If this program is accepted by Insurgents and Democrats—which is entirely likely—congress will go home from about June 11 to September 9, while the senate finance committee worries with the tariff. The new farm relief bill, however, must be placed on the statute books before the curtain rings down on the first half of the special session, which President Hoover called to solve the farm and tariff problems.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

By W. S. Cousins.
International News Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Encouraged by Monday's broad upswing in prices and the uniformly favorably reports and statements from representative trade and business centers, bulls in the stock market marked up prices of their favorites in the early trading today.

The rail and oils were ready to "reflect" the improvement in conditions generally, as well as the specific gains in net income of the well known companies. Wall Street took kindly to the extremely bullish reports on Erie railroad, buying the stocks in large blocks at 6%, the highest price on record and a vast contrast from the days when Erie was kicked around at less than $6 a share It was pointed out that earnings of Erie will probably reach $9 a share this year and $12 in 1930, and that its preferred stock is non-cumulative as to dividends.

CHORUS GIRL, DIVORCED, QUITS "STICKS" WITH $800 IN ALIMONY

CANTON, O., June 4.—(INS)—With $800 tucked safely away in her handbag or whatever place chorus girls carry their ready cash, Leona Harrison, 21, today was enroute back to Broadway after a sojourn of several months in the "sticks."

And Leona's former husband, William R. Harrison, 30, son of a wealthy Massillon, O., steel manufacturer, was $800 lighter in the checking account. However, he held a divorce decree in the hand which, Leona declares, always remained in his pocket when she wanted money.

Leona and William were married in October after a whirlwind courtship in Cleveland where she was appearing in the chorus of the Greenwhich Village Follies.

They seperated in November, Leona told Domestic Relations Judge Harvey F. Ake, yesterday, but made up. They separated again in February, this time permanently, she said, and Harrison sued for divorce, charging gross neglect.

Leona returned to the stage and is said to have told reporters, "I would rather be married to a ten-cent egg on Broadway than a millionaire hick on Main street." She insisted that Harrison was a "cheap skate" and refused to buy her clothes and other things she wanted.

Harrison countered with the charge that Leona continually threw big parties during their marital experience and spent more money on ash trays than she did on food.

Glorified American Waitress Must Be Young, Neat, Trim-Ankled and Charming

The modern waitress is more than just a waitress. Yes, sir. She's petite and has most of the qualities of a "pony" in a glorified chorus. She mustn't be more than 5 feet 3, older than 25, or weigh more than 110 pounds.

New Standards Create Real Hardship for Off-size Women.

THE girl who meets all the requirements for the ideal waitress of today has all the attributes necessary to join the chorus, take it from the thousands of homely waitresses thrown out of work on account of the new standards.

The comfortable, old-style waitress who relied on her ability and experience and lifting power is practically out. Managers used to favor the powerful plump girl to "advertise the food." Now they like 'em slender to put across the new "eat our food and get thin" idea.

An investigation of well-known restaurants and agencies employing waitresses revealed rigid rules in effect in most places. Here are some of the requirements:

She must not be over five feet three in height.

Not older than twenty-five years.

Weighing not more than 110 pounds.

Some of the more exclusive tea shops are rigidly aesthetic in their demands. The require "feet no larger than size four" and a form not exceeding "a perfect thirty-six." Some places bar bobbed hair, others require it.

An example is cited of a girl who filed an application with a very well-known restaurant chain, intensive experience, and remarkable education. The personnel manager took one look at her height without glancing at the card full of qualifications.

"Our tables are very low," she said conclusively. When the applicant, pleaded further that she had excellent experience and a good education, the woman said firmly:

"We must conform to our rules. Our age limit is twenty-five years and weight must be correct for the height."

Does it occur to the reader that girls who don't measure up to the new standards have a legitimate kick? Why is it that restaurant managers do not consider looks when they hire men waiters, while women are required to be short and chic, trim-ankled, neat and have plenty of IT?

What's going to happen to all the older women who have made their living for so many years at the honorable trade?

Does the patron like to have the contents of a plate of hot soup spilled down his back by one of the inexperienced though Glorified Girls? Or does he prefer to have his dinner served to him in a regular style, regardless of the fact that the one who serves him is fat and forty, knock-kneed and cross-eyed, but a darned good waitress.

FLY-TOX

DEVELOPED AT MELLON INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH BY REX RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP

It keeps your food safe — the temperature is well below 50...always!

For family health ... for appealing menus ... this is vital

In the General Electric Refrigerator the temperature is kept several degrees below fifty ... always! Fifty degrees is accepted by scientists as the "danger point" in the preservation of food. When the temperature rises even a degree or two above that, bacteria multiply, foods become unsafe to eat.

Perhaps you think your own refrigerator is always "cold enough." You cannot be sure unless you actually take your refrigerator's temperature. It is constant cold which is needed.

Countless superiorities give the General Electric Refrigerator its outstanding position ... an hermetically sealed, dust-proof mechanism, mounted on top ... an accessible temperature control ... a new standard of quiet operation ... no oiling ... no troublesome machinery ... simplified installation ... no radio interference ... an unqualified two-year service guarantee.

The new all-steel cabinets and the hermetically sealed mechanism combine to produce what we believe is the finest refrigerator ever made.

More than a quarter of a million homes are enjoying the convenience, economy and health-guarding services of the General Electric Refrigerator. And not one of these owners has ever paid a dollar for repairs or service! This is a record in the industry.

The new all-steel General Electric Refrigerators are priced as low as $215 at the factory. A small payment down places one in your home.

Visit our display rooms—see the new models—you'll agree that they offer the greatest values of all.

BURGLARS LOOT DRUG STORE

Carnahan is Robbed of $22 and Two Watches.

NEWELL, W. Va., June 4.—Sheriff J. S. D. Mercer, New Cumberland, and John Talbot, Newell, today are seeking a clue to the identity of the burglars who broke into the Carnahan drug store, Fifth street, Sunday morning and obtained $22 and two watches which they took from a jewelry case.

The burglars picked a lock on the cellar door, after which they made their way into the store using a brace and bit to lift a bolt and a section of the floor. The tools, it was discovered yesterday, had been taken earlier in the night from the office of the Newell Lumber company, Washington street.

Novelty store of Alex Rubenstein, Washington street, and a Chester chain store were looted in the same manner within the last two months.

Constable Talbot today offered a reward of $50 for information that would result in the conviction of the culprits.

TWO MEN JAILED ON LIQUOR COUNT

PAROLED CONVICT SPEEDILY JAILED

CANON CITY, Colo.—Parole from the Colorado penitentiary here means nothing more than another arrest for R. A. List, who thought he was fooling the warden, but who only fooled himself.

During the time List was serving his three to five years sentence in the "Big House" he was employed in making easy money—counterfeit silver dollars. He thought the officials at the prison knew nothing about his operations, but they were keeping quiet to catch two other suspects who were thought to have been working with List.

When List stepped out of the prison gates, he was re-arrested and was taken to Pueblo and arraigned in federal court on charges of counterfeiting money.

Nick's Nine Hits Hard But Can't Bunch Blows.

HI GREGORY, high school pitcher who has been going great guns for Nate Lorah's Newell scholastic combine, made his Inter-City league debut last night at Wellsville. Given excellent support by his mates who also produced an offensive of 10 solid blows, including a home run by Chappy Finley, a triple by Ranaldi and a double by Bubin, he registered an 8 to 6 victory over the Nash Motors in a game that gave the fans a little bit of everything.

The Nicholson combine outslugged the visitors, 12 to 10, but they couldn't bunch their bingles in the right spot.

Gregory retired six Wellsville batters during the seven frames, the Newell hurler shooting an outside hook with telling effect.

George Schneidmiller, Wellsville recruit who hung up a four-hit performance a short time ago in his initial league start, opened up against the visitors, but gave way to Sonny Deshler in the fifth after he had yielded five hits.

However, four of these five came in the inaugural frame and they accounted for three runs. Billy Watson was hit by a pitched ball and moved up on Mosser's sacrifice. Digman popped out to short. Finley singled and Ranaldi followed with a three-bagger to middle. Successive singles then by Bubin and Miller concluded the onslaught.

Digman's bingle in the second after Mosser got on when Canne threw low to first gave the visitors their fourth.

In the meantime, the Wellsville nine had scored one in the opener on a pair of singles by C. Wagner and Talbott. They added another in the third on singles by the Wagner brothers and Hap Jackson.

The score stood 4 to 2 until the fifth when Laughlin tallied again. Finley got a walk and was sacrificed by Ranaldi. Bubin golfed one over the right field fence, scoring Finley, and counted himself on Miller's single to center.

The Nicholson nine accumulated its third run in the same frame. C. Wagner lifted one over the right field wall for two bases, stole third and counted when Bill Talbott sacrificed to left.

Billy Watson singled through short to open the sixth and Mosser fanned. Digman singled to right, crossed the initial bag and started to second. C. Wagner fielded the ball quickly, however, and threw to Talbot, Digman being caught before he could retrace his steps.

Chappie Finley then up and smote one to the remote corner of middle field for a home run. It was one of the longest clouts ever hit in that park. Ranaldi was retired at first to end the rally.

The Wellsville nine had the crowd on its toes in the sixth when a three-run spurt put the home club within two markers of tying it up.

Canne walked and Hancock singled to center. Maley was safe when Watson bobbed one at short and threw wide to first, Canne counting. Deshler sacrificed and G. Wagner drove in a pair of tallies with a single to right.

Laughlin went out in order in the seventh. Talbott, leading off for Wellsville, started what looked like another rally when he lined a two-bagger to center. Watson dumped a short single back of second but the next three men went out in order.

..On The Sport Jigger..

By the Sports Editor

WE read in the daily prints that a former sparring partner of Jack Dempsey's was arrested in Pittsburgh for twiddling his fingers at the Volstead act.

—o—

Must have been knockout drops!

—o—

Speaking of Pittsburgh, those bally Buccaneers, bruised and battered after a shellacking of baseballs from the bloody bludgeons of the hard hitting Phils, broke out in a rash of hits themselves yesterday and won a 14 to 2 battle.

—o—

And Burleigh Grimes, a very prominent member of the Dreyfuss diamond troupe, performed on the hillock. He finished with his ninth consecutive win of the season tucked away in his hip pocket along with his bandanna.

—o—

The Phils were dazzled by the spray of Grimes' spitter and could see their way clear for only six blows.

—o—

Why not organize a "Grimes day" at Forbes Field to afford a delegation of East Liverpool and Minerva fans an opportunity to sit in a body at Forbes Field, visit with the big hurler and get away from their wives for the afternoon?

—o—

Grimes is a great lover of horses and animals of kindred nature.

—o—

Perhaps that's why he enjoys making jacks out of a lot of National league batters.

BUCS LACE PHILS FOR 14 TO 2 WIN

Burleigh Grimes Hangs Up Ninth Straight.

PITTSBURGH, June 4.—The Pirates, after losing two straight to Philadelphia, wreaked vengeance on the Quakers yesterday by beating them 14 to 2. It was the ninth consecutive win for Burleigh Grimes, spitball artist, who has not dropped a game this season.

A triple play, Thompson to Hurst to Friberg, featured in the fourth, after the Buccanneers had made four runs. Grimes lined to the Philadelphia second baseman with first and second occupied and the fast work of the Quaker infield killed off the Pirate rally.

The Phillies only runs resulted from Lerian's home run with Friberg on. Grantham and P. Waner made circuit hits for the home team. P. Waner also had two doubles.

Pittsburgh pounded Sweetland and Roy for 15 hits, totalling 27 bases.

"DEAD PAN" ED WELLS HITS SOX

Ohioan Now With Yanks Blanks Hose With Two Blows.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, June 4. — Rescued from the minors by the Yankees, Ed Wells, veteran southpaw of Ashland, Ohio, today enjoys a new lease on life. Manager Huggins has been nursing Dead Pan Eddie along all spring, looking for a soft spot where the former Detroit hurler might negotiate a comeback. He found it yesterday against the Chicago White Sox, Wells shutting out the pale hose with two hits.

Following impressive performances by Hoyt and Pipgras, Eddie's work has given the reorganized champions new life in their effort to catch up with the flying Athletics. Only 29 batters faced him and the game was played in the remarkable short time of an hour and 20 minutes, believed to be a record for the Yanks.

Gene Robertson clouted three doubles off Lyons, the first one sending in the only tally of the game. It was New York's third straight victory over the Sox.

George Uhle's winning streak of nine victories was snapped in a 13-inning duel with Lefty Grove, ace of the Athletics. After filling the bases by issuing two intentional passes, the Detroit hurler was unable to get the ball over the plate for Bishop and forced in the run, the A's winning 3 to 2, for their sixth straight triumph.

Burleigh Grimes, Pittsburgh veteran, took up the good work where Uhle left off by beating the Phillies, 14 to 2, for his ninth straight win. The Bucs, smarting under two straight defeats by the slowtown outfit, laced Sweetland and Roy for 15 hits, totaling 27 bases.

The Phils pulled a triple play in the fourth when Grimes lined to Thompson with two on base.

The Cardinals maintained their lead of a game and a half over the Pirates by taking a ding-dong contest from Brooklyn, 9 to 8. The score was tied five times during the afternoon.

The Giants' 8 to 1 victory over the Cubs provided a flock of statistics. It was New York's eleventh win out of their last 12 starts, their fifth consecutive victory and their third straight over the Cubs, from whom they won only two games last year at Chicago.

"No-Hit" Hubbell had so much stuff that the three New York outfielders did not make a single putout or assist.

If the Giants win again today they will take third place away from the Cubs. Yesterday's triumph put them back in the first division, Phillies dropping to fifth place.

Sam Gray pitched the Browns to a 6 to 4 victory over Washington, and Cincinnati outslugged the Boston Braves, 12 to 3. The Cleveland Indians ran into a June snowstorm in Boston.

MILWAUKEE BIDS FOR CELLAR BERTH

Visions of Milwaukee occupying the cellar position in the American association pennant race were seen here today.

The Brewers lost their yesterday's game to Minneapolis by the ignominious score of 21 to 7, which made them look like a bunch of urchins playing on an empty lot.

One more defeat and a duplicate of the Columbus Senator's win over Louisville, which happened to the tune of 5-to-4 yesterday, will see the beer boys from Wisconsin in last place, the place which Columbus now is heroically trying to climb out of, and which they will probably do—sometime.

Milwaukee is now in seventh place, and the team which literally knocked it about the field yesterday is in first position.

St. Paul did the unexpected and upset the dopester's bucket yesterday when it trounced Kansas City, 7 to 4. The latter team still holds to its second berth and St. Paul, even with yesterday's win added to its column remains a distant third.

Toledo drew itself closer to Louisville's fifth position by smashing out five runs, when Indianapolis had to scratch and scratch hard for two tallies.

Toledo is now in the sixth driving-seat, only a half-game behind the Colonels.

Indianapolis still clings to fourth, though another bunch or series of defeats which it has been undergoing, may see it slipping from the banks of the first division into the waters of the second.

Motors Defeat Dixies

Simms Nine Tightens Second Place Grasp.

SIMMS MOTORS tightened the hold on second place in the Community league last night when they trimmed Dixonville, 12 to 7, in a hot contest at Anderson acres

The first two frames were scoreless but both clubs crossed the plate twice in the third. The Dixies forged to the front with two more in their half of the fourth. In the fifth the Motors' war clubs hammered Rose off the hilltop. He went to second, Foster to left and Lee to the slab. The Motors, however, did not let up until six men had scored.

Dixies got another in their half but the Simms nine iced the game with four in the sixth while their rivals made only two additional round trips.

Hall and Bettes led the hitters with three in four trips apiece. Chamberlain and Enoch contributed fancy catches.

All Outdoors

By J. W. Stuber

COLUMBUS, O., June 4.—If you were lost in the woods what would you do?

The first thing to do is to keep your head; don't get panicky.

Sit down and try to figure out where you are. Take a piece of paper or birchbark and try to map out your route upon leaving camp. If you have no pencil take a stick and scratch, in the dirt, your route as near as you can remember. Think of any landmarks such as trees, lakes, brooks, or mountains you know of. If there is a railroad near your camp recall its location and then think which side of the track you are on. This will help you collect your senses and quiet your fears.

Really there is little to fear in the woods if you are uninjured, and if you have plenty of matches and ammunition. Only a foolhardy hunter will venture out without plenty of matches in a waterproof matchbox or without extra ammunition for an emergency.

Go to a hill or mountain, climb a tree, and perhaps you will soon recognize some familiar landmark. Maybe you are closer to camp than you think you are.

Fear takes away your nerve, your common sense, your judgment.

You may be sure your companions and your guide will be looking for you. They signal by shouting, by building a fire, by making smoke, or firing a gun. Don't run. When you know you are lost stay put and try to signal your companions.

Build two smokes—not too close together. The smoke rising above the trees on a high point can be seen by your companions. Fire two shots, in quick succession.

These signals are known to every wilderness hunter of experience. In 30 minutes fire two more shots. You will likely get an answer soon, and then you can set your compass or if the sun is shining locate the direction. Answer any signal shots immediately. Don't wast your ammunition, however.

If you think you will have to remain out all night, make your camp before dark. Cut plenty of firewood. Build a lean-to. Make a fir-bough bed. Try to get some sleep. Keep a bright fire going. Your friends will see your fire if they are looking for you as they will be. Don't build a big bon-fire. A small fire is warmer. You can sit close. Write your name on a piece of birch bark, fasten it with a split stick, and stand it in the ground or on a stump, if you leave—telling what you are going to do.

If no help comes, follow a brook or a logging road. They lead to a settlement or some outside point, eventually. If you go the wrong way on a logging road, turn around and go the other way. It starts from some outside place.

Shoot a partridge to eat. Shoot one to take with you. Kill a deer, if you can. Kill a porcupine. Maybe you can get a rabbit. You can nearly always kill some small animal to eat, and then you won't go hungry.

Learn to use a compass. Your compass, however, will not tell you where camp is, it will only indicate direction, north, south, east and west. That's all.

Never waste your matches. Your life may depend upon them.

In an emergency you can shout and if lost your companions who will be looking for you and who may be within hearing distance can locate you.

At night you can locate a birch tree on high ground and set it afire. The fire will likely blaze to the top of the tree and can be seen a long distance. However, never do this in dry weather for fear of setting the woods afire.

Whenever you locate in a country with which you are not familiar, immediately note the outstanding land marks, such as mountains, trees, peculiar formation of rocks, directions of brooks and rivers, roads, trails, railroads or other marks that won't change their location. Make a map of your own, or use a map you have taken with you. Always have a map of the country in which you hunt or fish, showing the immediate territory. These can be secured from the Forestry department and Fish and Game departments of every province in Canada, or from any of the "wilder" states for the asking.

You are safer from harm in the Big Woods than you are in any city in the land. Don't be afraid to stay in the woods. There is not a single big game animal in North America of which any camper need be afraid, night or day. Wolves will not molest you if you keep a fire going, at night. They may be noisy but not dangerous if you have a fire.

And then, remember, that any man who says he has never been lost or turned around in the big woods, never went far enough from camp to get lost. It's no disgrace to get lost. The best woodsmen get lost, only they find their way out and seldom admit they were lost.

Think of what the Indian said: "Me no lost, Camp lost."

K. T. K. NINE IN ACTION AT CHESTER

Tonight's Game is Transferred to Smith Field.

Tonight's Inter-City league clash between the Katies and the Chester News nine, originally scheduled for Columbian park, has been transferred to Smith Field, Chester.

The East End lot is occupied by a carnival and will not be in shape for baseball for a week or so.

The Wellsville nine will play at Chester tomorrow night and the Katies at Newell Friday.

Chester can get back at the .500 mark by a win over the Katies tonight while a victory for the local Potters will mean much more to them.

Laughlin beat Wellsville last night and the Katies, tied for second, are now only a half-game away from the top berth.

Edwards, Malone At Beaver

Foutts Has Rudy Lined Up as Main Bouter.

THAT fisticuffing card which Ray Foutts, the fair-haired boy who is making matches for the Junction Amusement company, a new sports industry established at Junction park, near Beaver, ought to appeal to cauliflower enthusiasts of this section of the valley. Foutts is making his debut as a Beaver Valley fistic impresario on Thursday night, June 13, and he's putting on a batch of valley punchers who will have a distinct appeal to class and mass.

Freddy Edwards, the Chester welterweight whose two fights with Joe Todd, the Donoran, wound up affairs of the Valley A. C. with a bang, is going on in one of the two six-rounders Foutts is planning.

And his opponent is Eddie Anderson, Pittsburgh, a tough, rugged boy who recently stopped this same Todd. He had Todd on the canvas three times in a whirlwind scrap.

And there's Baby Face Nick Malone, the swing and punch featherweight who's billed for a four. Malone is railroading in the vicinity of Conway yards and he'll be right on the job.

Malone is matched with Young Jacobs, a protege of Abie Witz of Canonsburg who recently was immortalized in the Pittsburgh district by his one-round knockout of James "Red" Mason in a gymnasium brawl.

Jackie King of Wampum and Ted Yarosz of Beaver Falls, occupy the corners in the other four-rounder.

In a twin six-rounder to the Edwards-Anderson mill, Young Smackey of Canonsburg meets Lou Sanders of Beaver Falls.

Young Rudy, of Pittsburgh, is certain as a main bout nominee and that means fight. For his opponent Foutts is trying hard to land Dick Ramies, the Mexican welter who's fighting out of Cleveland, and who a short time ago won from Jack Zivic in Canton. Ramies wants plenty of dough and the match is still hanging fire. If not Ramies, Rudy's foe may be Frankie Chatterton, also of Cleveland.

Hands Unseen

New Mystery Story of "Gray Phantom," Loveable Outlaw.

By Herman Landon

Copyright by Street and Smith Corporation.

Once, for instance, he had held the police at bay while conducting a spectacular carnival of plunder in the financial district. In comparison with exploits of that kind, the extraction of a million dollars from Mr. Craig's coffers was a relatively simple undertaking.

His thoughts were taking a disturbing turn. Reduced to plain terms, the letter offered Mr. Craig two alternatives, one as objectionable as the other. If he did not voluntarily lend the Gray Pantom a million, the Gray Phantom would take the million by force. The issue was whittled down to a fine point. Not for a moment did Mr. Craig doubt that the Gray Phantom would execute his threat in case the loan should be refused. The wily scamp had proved on numerous occasions that his deed was as good as his word. A long series of startling performances had shown that his wits were equal to any task. To pluck a million dollars from Mr. Craig's ample hoard would be but a mild diversion, a holiday caper. Perhaps in the end it would be cheaper to comply with the outrageous demand, especially since it seemed that Mr. Craig had little choice in the matter.

He wriggled uncomfortably in his chair. There were two things Mr. Craig loved. One was his life, the other his money, and he was not sure which should come first. If his enjoyment of the latter had not been dependent upon his possession of the former he would doubtless have prized his money above everything else. Hence his whole nature revolted violently against his mere thought of parting with a million dollars, despite the Gray Panthom's assurance that the transaction was only a temporary loan. How was Mr. Craig to know that the Gray Phantom, even with the best intentions, would be able to fulfill his promise? The Gray Phantom was leading a precarious existence. He might die within the year, or he might be sent to jail. A number of such possibilities occurred to Mr. Craig's practical mind.

He pondered the matter while he sat opposite his niece at luncheon, giving short and evasive answers to the questions that poped out of her pretty dark head. After the meal he retired again to the library and gave the letter another dismal perusal.

A look of grim intentness crept into his gaunt, leathery face as his mind caught eagerly at a few words in the opening sentence. Here was a crumb of comfort, at least. Nine other wealthy men were in the same predicament as Mr. Craig himslf. Nine others were brooding over similar letters from the redoubtable Gray Phantom, each of them a prey to the same thoughts and misgivings as were assailing the occupant of Tuckaway Camp. There was comfort in that, even though Mr. Craig could not know who the others were. It gave him a bracing sense of companionship in peril, a feeling that they were ten against one. Though they could not join forces, it was a soothing thought that nine others were sharing his plight.

The reflection revived his waning courage, kindling a belligerent spark in his inflamed eyes. Already he felt a spirit of fratenity toward the other nine, and in turn he derived from them a sense of moral support. In an altered frame of mind he scanned the paragraphs of the letter, and his lips twisted derisively. The colossal impudence of the fellow! How preposterous of him to suppose that ten solid, respectable citizens could be bullied into compliance with his absurd demand. Mr. Craig felt a wave of righteous indignation rising within him. It was humiliating to think that only a short while ago he had seriously considered meek submission. Berating himself for his temporary weakness, he was already cudgeling his mind for an effective way of rebuking The Phantom's monstrous insolence. He would communicate with the police at once. The letter should be placed in their hands immediately. The Gray Phantom's messenger, when he arrived, would be promptly arrested. Mr. Craig would make the swaggering scamp a laughing stock.

Three A. M. Be Prepared.

There was no signature, and none was needed. Mr. Craig, smothering the note in his hand, looked at the rattling windows. There were four in all, and two of them faced the veranda, making his bedroom easily accessible to a prowler. His hand descended heavily on the call bell and in an incredibly short time William showed a startled face at the door.

"Ah, William," said Mr. Craig, trying to control his nerves, "I don't think I'll be able to sleep here tonight. These confounded windows rattle like artillery. Get the blue room ready as soon as you can."

"Yes, sir," said William. "I think it's ready now, sir, but I'll take a look."

Mr. Craig avoided the servant's mildly puzzled glance. Already he felt a little easier. The blue room, usually reserved for guests, was three stories above the ground and it had only one door and one window, the former equipped with a substantial bolt and the latter with a stout shutter.

"And, William," said Mr. Craig as the servant turned away, "if any one should call during the night, I am not at home. Understand?"

William blinked his honest blue eyes in a bewildered way. A nocturnal caller at Tuckaway Camp was something unheard of.

"Yes, sir," he said uncertainly. "I think I do, sir."

With another vaguely troubled glance at his master he hurried away to inspect the blue room.

Mr. Bell

Despite the feeling of security which a shuttered window and a bolted door should bring, Mr. Craig spent a wretched night. Toward morning he had fallen into a light doze, but this had been rudely interrupted by a loud and insistent ringing at the front door. It had ceased after a while, from which Mr. Craig gathered that William had carried out his instructions in regard to a possible caller, but after that sleep had been out of the question. Now, heavy-eyed and with a dull churning in his head, Mr. Craig slipped out of bed and dressed.

He rang for William and instructed him to serve breakfast in his room. Then he opened the shutters and looked out upon another dispiriting day. There was no wind, and the sound, with a gray mist hovering about it was very still. The branches of the trees were edged with frozen sleet in fantastic shapes.

Mr. Craig turned away and fell to pacing the floor while waiting for his breakfast. William, when he entered with the tray, regarded his master with a half doleful, half mystified expression. He placed the tray on the table, poured Mr. Craig's coffee, adding the usual quantities of sugar and cream.

Then he sepped aside, but seemed reluctant to leave the room.

"Ahem, William," began Mr. Craig, "did any one call last night?"

"Yes sir, a man came to the door. It was a little after three. I told him you were not at home, sir, and he turned and walked away without another word."

Mr. Craig plucked indifferently at his toast, but he drank the strong, fragrant coffee with keen relish. William's recital of how easily he had disposed of the early morning caller seemed to put him in a mood approaching cheerfulness.

"What did he look like, William?"

"I couldn't say, sir. The light was dim. He wore a soft hat—brown, I think—and the brim was pulled far down over his eyes. As nearly as I could make out, he was not a very big man. He spoke with some kind of foreign accent, but it wasn't very noticeable. He carried a big black suitcase."

A feeble gleam of humor showed in Mr. Craig's sunken eyes. A big black suitcase! Big enough, of course, to contain a thousand one thousand dollar bills. He felt a malicious glee at the thought that the fellow had been obliged to carry it away empty.

"Another cup of coffee, William. It's very good this morning."

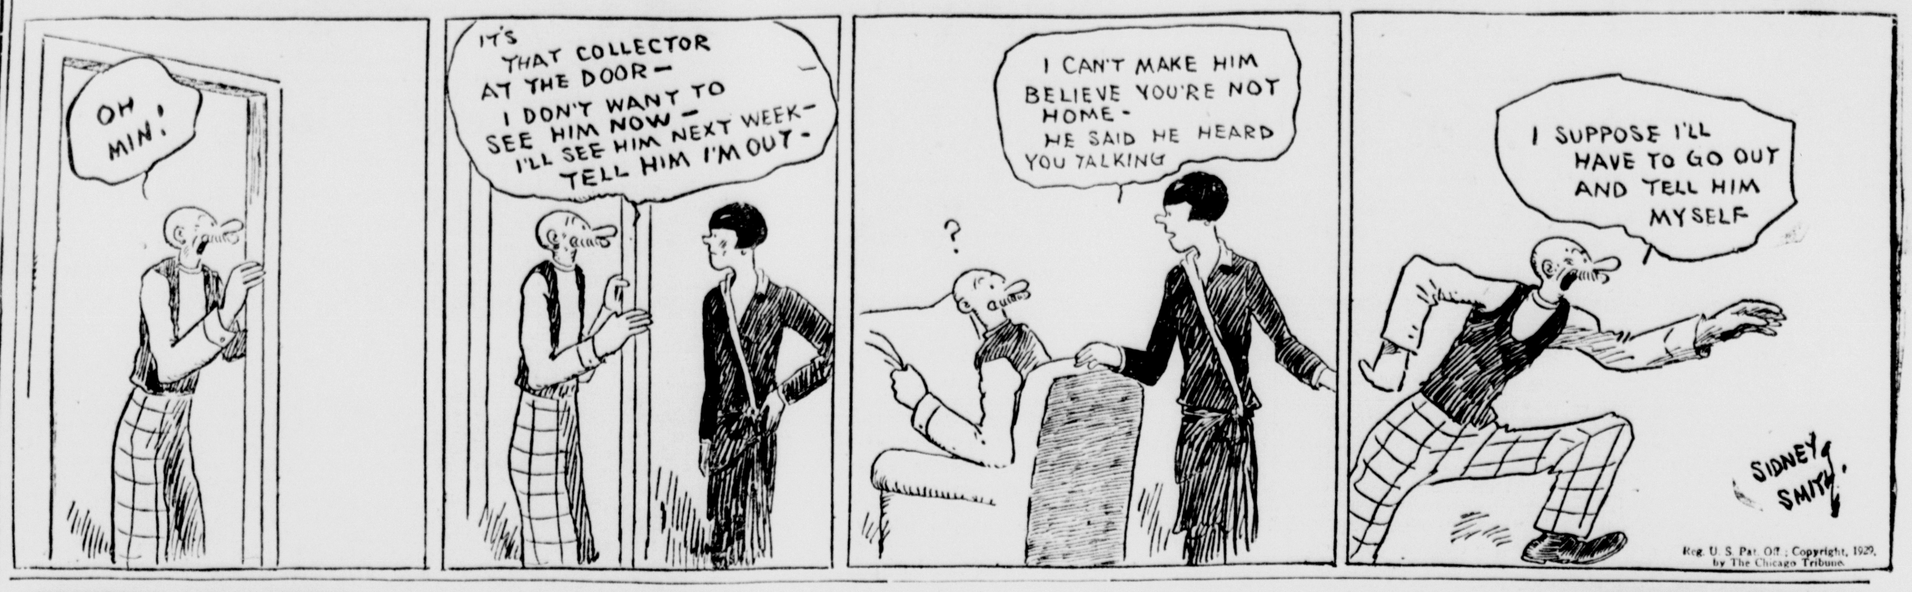

"Thank you sir." William replenished his master's cup then stood awkwardly aside, one hand fumbling inside his pocket. "By the way, sir, this—this letter came a little while ago." With great reluctance he drew an envelope from his pocket.

A portion of Mr. Craig's coffee sloshed over the brim of his cup. Things blurred before his eyes, but through the blur he say a typewritten line in the center of the envelope. Steadying himself with a great effort, he took it from William's hand and scrutinized the superscription.
